2018
IMPACT REPORT

Message from Leadership

2018 was an amazing year at the Adult Congenital Heart Association, as we implemented new programs—and strengthened existing ones—that support the congenital heart disease (CHD) community and the medical providers who provide this crucial specialty care. In this Impact Report, you'll learn more about some of these initiatives, including advocacy efforts, ACHA ACHD Accreditation, and growth among areas where we serve our members, such as events both in-person and online.

This past year was the first of Vision 2025, our guide for the future, and we spent much time laying the foundation for future years. As we shift into 2019, we are especially excited to bring our research program to life.

Throughout 2018, ACHA's Medical Advisory Board put together a thoughtful and strategic plan for peer-reviewed research that will include six grants in 2019 — three faculty grants and three fellow grants. We are funding projects that we believe will offer the best outcomes for the CHD community.

None of our successes would have been possible without the dedicated team here at ACHA, and all of you — volunteers, ambassadors, friends and supporters who share your time, talent and treasure to advance our work. Thank you for everything that you do, and we look forward to what the future brings.

Accredited Centers on the Rise

The ACHA ACHD Accreditation Program continued to gain momentum.

There were 24 accredited centers around the country at the end of 2018—and many more in the pipeline—helping ensure every person with CHD has access to specialized care regardless of where they live. For a full list of accredited centers, visit www.achaheart.org/accreditation.

Year-Long Advocacy Efforts

Our advocacy program was bolstered this year with in-district visits throughout the United States, educating public officials about CHD and impacting policy on state and federal levels.

In addition, ACHA activists gathered in late February in Washington, D.C., to educate legislators about CHD and the need for research, surveillance and awareness. This year ended on a high note with the full passage of the Congenital Heart Futures Reauthorization Act.

Regional Conferences Bring Education Around the U.S.

Regional conferences in 2018 offered attendees—in Spokane, WA, Hollywood, FL, Omaha, NE, and Berkeley, CA—a significant opportunity to interact with each other and medical providers.

Through these regional conferences, adults with CHD and their family members received the educational tools necessary for empowerment, allowing them to make informed decisions, seek lifelong care from CHD experts and learn how to advocate for their CHD needs, health and wellness.

Providing 24/7 Education Through Webinars

Webinars are one of the most robust ways that ACHA provides ongoing comprehensive education to our members.

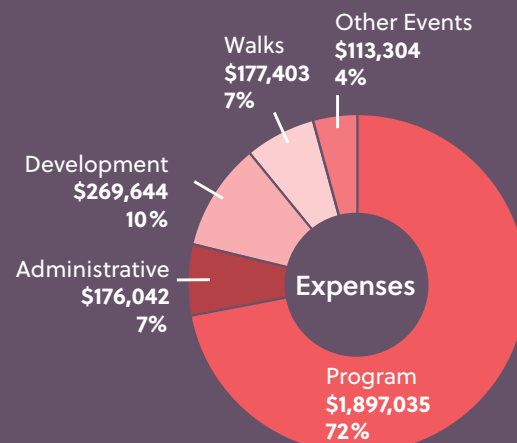

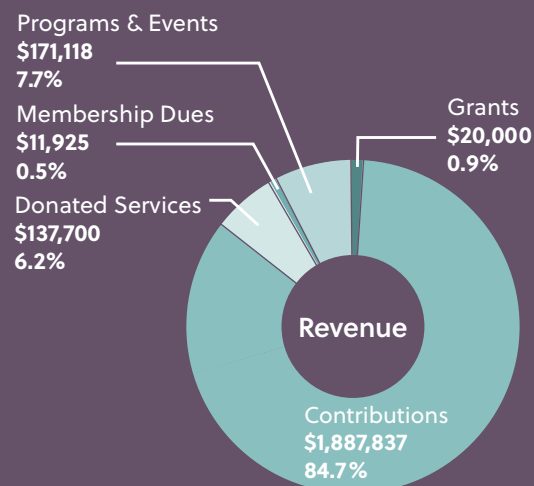

At least once monthly, our leading experts and advocates cover a range of interesting, diverse and timely medical topics in patient-friendly language. In 2018, thousands of people watched a live or archived webinar. Along with defect-specific topics, we also covered areas such as genetics and hereditary risk, palliative care, and a comprehensive two-part webinar on the new 2018 ACHD guidelines.

Regional Development Leaders Reach Communities in New Ways

In 2018 we launched the early stages of our Regional Development program, where we are placing ACHA staff in key markets across the country to drive mission and fundraising.

We are also able to collaborate with local pediatric and adult congenital heart cardiologists to help build awareness of ACHA and the appropriate CHD care needed throughout the lifespan; help to connect and engage patients and their families through regional events; and foster consistent outreach in local communities. By enhancing walk and gala experiences, our 2018 walks and galas raised a total of over $1.4 million to support ACHA's mission.
