Westchester Medical Center Health Network/WMCHealth seeks a Director of Adult Congenital Heart Disease to join their multidisciplinary team that includes pediatric and adult cardiologists. This is a unique opportunity to build a world-class Adult Congenital Heart Disease Program with the support of the Department of Cardiology at Westchester Medical Center and the Division of Pediatric Cardiology at Maria Fareri’s Children’s Hospital.

Westchester Medical Center Health Network/WMCHealth is a 1,700-bed healthcare system headquartered in Valhalla, New York, with 10 hospitals on eight campuses, spanning 6,200 square miles of the Hudson Valley and approximately $3 billion in annual revenue. WMCHealth employs more than 13,000 people and has hundreds of providers employed in one of two medical groups which make up WMCHealth Physicians. WMCHealth sponsors 31 GME programs, with over 300 residents and fellows. WMCHealth has nearly 3,000 attending physicians who care for more than 381,000 patients annually.

Westchester Medical Center is the 600-bed academic flagship with a Level I Trauma Center, burn center, and heart transplant program. Westchester Medical Center maintains an academic affiliation with the NYMC School of Medicine and has an active Cardiology Fellowship Program, offering ACGME-accredited advanced fellowship programs in Interventional Cardiology (1 year); Advanced Heart Failure and Transplant Cardiology (1 year); and Clinical Cardiac Electrophysiology (2 years).

The ideal candidate will offer:

- New York State license and/or be eligible for state licensure
- Board certification or eligibility in adult congenital heart disease required
- Fellowship training or extensive experience in adult congenital heart disease required
- Strong clinical competencies
- Leadership and organizational skills

Westchester Medical Center Health Network/WMC Health is located just north of New York City, between the Hudson River and Long Island Sound. Valhalla is about 30 miles from Midtown Manhattan, and commuters can travel to Grand Central Terminal from its Metro-North station in roughly 40 minutes.
